How did the Fund perform in the last six months?

The abbreviated performance summary below is a departure from our historical shareholder letters and has been prepared to align with the SEC's Tailored Shareholder Report requirements. Please contact Champlain Funds with additional fund-specific questions.

The Champlain Mid Cap Fund (CIPIX) returned 1.28% for the 6-month period ending 06/30/2024, which trailed the 4.96% return for Russell Midcap and the 13.56% return for the Russell 3000. This Fund's health care holdings underperformed as the overweight of this sector exacerbated weak stock selection. We believe the ongoing weakness in the Fund's equipment and supplies holdings reflects investor concerns about exposures to a weakening consumer, flatter utilization levels (after pent-up demand from the pandemic), and GLP-1s possibly shrinking addressable markets. Exact Sciences was the Fund's largest detractor as investors fear competitive pressures for Exact's flagship product. In industrials, allocation explains roughly half of the Fund's underperformance, as the Fund has no direct exposure to the most cyclical industries in the sector. Additionally, stock selection in machinery has not helped, where Nordson Corporation was a notable detractor. In financials, Toast, Inc. drove outperformance. In the first quarter, Toast reported improvement in profitability and guided to strong margins going forward, in addition to announcing a $250 million share repurchase program and committing to lower stock compensation expenses. In technology, Pure Storage continues to deliver strong returns. Pure's Evergreen subscription business and growing product portfolio continue to deepen customer relationships and improve Pure's competitive advantage. This Fund's overweight of consumer staples was a notable headwind. The consumer environment is dynamic, with diverging category trends and financial pressures beginning to spread from low-income to middle-income households. The need-to-have products sold by food, beverage, household, and personal care companies – which this Fund significantly over-indexes to – have historically held up well in these environments. However, many companies, including Brown-Forman, have not shown the resilience we would have expected as they deal with post-COVID distortions and idiosyncratic issues, like the sluggish whiskey market.

Though our investment process has been out of favor relative to some benchmarks given the exceptional money supply growth, fiscal largesse, and immigration (additional stimulus to the economy), we are not remotely tempted to change our spots. Indeed, we have renewed our commitment to high quality while our faith in our investment process remains steadfast. We are encouraged by the y/y absolute and relative improvement in some key characteristics as well as a compelling weighted average discount for Fair Value for the Fund. Though we have no special insight into the timing, relative tailwinds for our process and its favorite industries seem inevitable at some point.

Householding

Rule 30e-1 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 permits funds to transmit only one copy of a proxy statement, annual report or semi-annual report to shareholders (who need not be related) with the same residential, commercial or electronic address, provided that the shareholders have consented in writing and the reports are addressed either to each shareholder individually or to the shareholders as a group. This process is known as “householding” and is designed to reduce the duplicate copies of materials that shareholders receive and to lower printing and mailing costs for funds.
